Message from the CEO

As I am sure many of you know, NPWH always strives to provide you with tools and information that you can use to further your professional development and your education. I am proud to announce that NPWH has developed the Women's Health Nurse Practitioner Certification Exam Review Course and Women's Health Update! This 22-module package provides a comprehensive review course that will help new WHNP graduates prepare for the National Certification Corporation (NCC) WHNP certification examination. In addition, the review course package includes a module on test-taking strategies, with more than 200 review questions that are presented in the NCC question format.

This course is designed to meet the needs of not only new WHNP graduates but also students and practicing NPs. In addition, current WHNP students can use selected modules to supplement course content as they progress through their academic program. The added benefit of this review course is that WHNPs will earn continuing education credit and pharmacology hours for each module.

These modules have been created and presented by 15 NCC-certified WHNPs who are experts in women's health. All presenters of the modules either currently teach or have taught in WHNP programs and were chosen specifically because they specialize in the topic. Exposure to multiple WHNP experts enables participants to experience a variety of presenting styles that will keep them engaged throughout the course.

As a final important note, each module was reviewed by two external NPs with a range of experience, from recent graduates to veteran WHNPs.

For more information on how to purchase the entire review course or selected modules, please visit www.npwh.org and click on E-Learning and then Curriculum.

We hope to see you in New Orleans for our 19th Annual Premier Women's Healthcare Conference, which will be held from September 28 through October 1, 2016. This conference promises to be an exciting event in a fabulous location! Visit our website for more information.
