Focus on Diversity, Inclusion, Structural Racism, and Implicit Bias in Women's Healthcare

Women's Healthcare: A Clinical Journal for NPs, the official, peer-reviewed journal of the National Association of Nurse Practitioners in Women's Health, invites you to submit manuscripts with a focus on diversity, inclusion, structural racism, and implicit bias in women's healthcare, women's health organizations, schools of nursing, and women's health policy. We are seeking to shed light on these issues within our profession and offer solutions to move forward to dismantle institutionalized racism within the healthcare system.

We are interested in manuscripts for both feature-length articles and short-form articles, the latter including the titles: Assessment and Management, Clinical Resources, Commentary, DNP Projects, On the Case, and Professional Development. Consult our Guidelines for authors for more detailed information.

Email queries concerning manuscript submission to gschwenker@healthcommedia.com.
